Dear Editor

International Journal of Science Review
(INFLUENCE Journal)

I read and use scientific articles published in INFLUENCE Journal.

The performance of the INFLUENCE Journal was excellent, and the published article helped me conduct research and write scientific reports.

I am Rr. Dijan Widijowati, Researcher from Universitas Bhayangkara Jakarta Raya, Indonesia.

I have completed a scientific article entitled "Application of Compensation Money Legal Sanctions in Corruption Crimes in Indonesia and the United States."

I hope this article can be published in the INFLUENCE Journal because exciting findings in the scientific report can become new treasures in science, especially in economics sciences.

I am willing to go through the review process following INFLUENCE Journal standards.

Best Regards,

Rr. Dijan Widijowati

Editor and Reviewer comments:

Reviewer #1:

1. A more detailed explanation is needed regarding TAP MPR Number IX/MPR/1998 and its role in combating corruption in Indonesia. Include historical context on the issuance of this law and its impact on the legal system in Indonesia.
2. Provide a more comprehensive discussion of the steps taken by the Indonesian government in determining the payment of money as compensation for corruption. Include specific cases or real-life implementations of these measures to strengthen the arguments and readers' understanding.
3. There should be a more detailed comparison between the legal systems in Indonesia and the United States regarding criminal sanctions for money substitutes in the context of law enforcement against acts of corruption. Identify important similarities and differences and their implications for the effectiveness of law enforcement.
4. Clearly explain the research methodology, including the theoretical framework supporting the comparative analysis between Indonesia and the United States. Also, include information on the data sources used in this study.
5. Add some relevant case studies or real-life events to support the arguments presented in the article. This will help strengthen readers' understanding of the differences between Indonesia and the United States regarding criminal sanctions for money substitutes in the context of corruption.

I hope you can make improvements as soon as possible and send the revised article again via this email.

Dear

Rr. Dijan Widijowati
Universitas Bhayangkara Jakarta Raya, Indonesia

Thank you for your efforts to make improvements to your article.
Based on the Reviewers' considerations, the article has, at some point, increased.
However, you have to improve on a few more points. Hopefully, you are willing to do it.

Please follow the following revision instructions:

#Reviewer 2:

1. The abstract provides a good overview of the research topic and the aim of the study. However, it would be beneficial to include a brief statement about the significance of comparing the legal approaches of Indonesia and the United States in combating corruption. This will help readers understand the relevance and potential impact of the research.
2. The keywords accurately reflect the main aspects of the study. Consider adding a few more specific keywords related to the legal frameworks, such as "legal sanctions," "anti-corruption legislation," or "compensation mechanisms." This will enhance the article's visibility and improve its indexing in relevant databases.
3. While the article mentions that normative legal research was employed, it would be helpful to elaborate on the specific research methods used within this framework. Clarify whether doctrinal analysis, comparative legal analysis, or other research techniques were applied to analyze the legal systems of Indonesia and the United States.
4. Provide examples or case studies to illustrate the differences in criminal sanctions for money substitutes between Indonesia and the United States. This will strengthen the argumentation and offer a more practical understanding of how these legal approaches are implemented in real-life corruption cases.
5. Consider discussing any potential limitations or challenges faced during the research process. Addressing these limitations will add transparency and provide opportunities for future studies to address the gaps and build upon the findings presented in this article.

Articles that have been revised and please send them back via this email.
