The email content includes a recommendation for publication with minor corrections, a thank you message, and a list of minor corrections. The corrections include formatting, abstract length, keywords, objective, citations, and references. The deadline for the revised article is August 21, 2024.

Recommendation: Accepted for Publication with Minor corrections

Reviewer B:

Dear Editor,

The article is good and should be accepted for publication. However, I request minor corrections:

- > The article's formatting must strictly follow the journal template (citations, references and formatting). Please see the Guide for Authors.
- > The Abstract is very short. The abstract must contain a minimum of 250 and a maximum of 300 words.
- > Provide keywords that are not in the article title (3 to 6).
- > Add the article's objective at the end of the Introduction section.
- > There are too many citations in the Conclusion section, and this is not right. Authors should shorten this section if necessary, focusing only on answering the objectives of the study.
- > Please provide the following statements: Ethical considerations, Conflict of interest and Funding.
- > The references must be in accordance with the Guide for Authors of the Multidisciplinary Reviews. Please use the APA (American Psychological Association) style for that <https://www.malque.pub/ojs/index.php/mr/guide>
- > Please make sure to highlight in yellow or another color of your preference any changes made to the text so that we know and can make the changes to the final file.

Recommendation: Accepted for Publication with Minor corrections
