Reviewer Guidelines

Timelessness is important: if you cannot meet the deadline given, please contact with the editor. When revising the paper, please take into account that its content is confidential. When writing the comments to the authors, please follow these guidelines:

1. Number your comments, so authors can refer them easily in their letters to the editor.
2. Always be polite.
3. As far as is possible, be constructive: please emphasize the strong points of the article at least as much as the weak ones.

In your review, do not state if the article must be published or not. Reviewers often disagree, and the final publishing decision is editor's responsibility.

Dear Wastam Hidayat,

Thank you so much for reviewing the article "Influencia bursátil de los ratios financieros en la cotización de las empresas del sector de electricidad y gas en cada etapa del mercado (2000 – 2021)" for Intangible Capital. Notwithstanding, upon receipt of your review report we believe that your review is not eligible for remuneration as it does not comply Intangible Capital editorial policies. We very much appreciate your one you submitted.

When preparing a review for Intangible Capital, we do highly appreciate constructive evaluative comments, but we also expect reviewers' comments to allow the authors identify their weaknesses, main areas of improvement or any other change that would potentially strengthen the manuscript.

In this specific case, although we do see merit in the work done by the authors, the paper needs important refinements before it can be suitable for publication. In your report, advice on which direction to take was very limited and therefore, your report provides little value and guidance for authors.

Following the journal's policy (for more details, please check: <https://www.intangiblecapital.org/index.php/ic/about/editorialPolicies#peerReviewProcess>) for this review you will not be reimbursed. I hope you find this feedback useful and you can contribute with us in the near future with more accurate reviews.

Once again, thank you for collaborating with Intangible Capital. We will
